

George Toyntetto. Grand George Poyntell George Poyntello. George la Johnston Juntele Conge Porgette Gosego George Byruge Samuel A Van Brakle. George Proy Sam! Hran Boate Boys Show Han Brake Boy Han Brake MD Boys A Van Brakle Stranspakle

is unseen? I answer that whatever spiritual powers they, may be induced with, which are beyond our comprehension, that they should passels such influence on matter, as is implied in the preceding objection, is much hypothetical, and contrary to probability, as it is to experience + - It is improbable, that spiritual dereated beings, not united to corporeal organs, should propels any power over matter. It is improbable that any beings, except by an immediate com: mand from God should be permitted to operate out of their own sphere, and still more improbable that evil beings, should be permitted to usurp the sphere appropriated to human nature by a wise obenificent Greater in the order of the universe - It is contrary to experience. We see no such producies ever effected. The mawellous tales, the offspring of imposture and of ignorant wonder, with which every country has abounded in the earlist periods of its society, are discredited in proportion as the science of nature, is cultivated vimproved - The argument Note & From our ignorance of the system of nature, there will always be infinite chances against one, that every hypothesis is false from experience, which is false when applied to the meracles which are appealed to as the lest of divine revelation is decisive against all demoniacal miraculous operations. According to the true idea of divine miracles they can ralely be interposed in the course of human wents, and only when God sees it needsay to make a new annunciation of his with to the world - This is a case of so high speculiar a nature that our experience of the usual tion of events, in the physical world cannot be considered as an infallble measure of the creditility of those extradinary arts of Ommpotence, by which it may please God to authenticate the mif: sion of those holy men whom he hath employed to promulgate the law of his grace to mankind - But if we admit demoniacal miracles it must be from an efsential power, which those evil spirits are supposed to possess over the objects of Nature - If it were no quater than that profesed by men, must we not frequently perceive a thousand prodigies, performed by them which could not be explained by the ordinary laws of nature? If it esential to them as spirits, would they not be as free in its excercise as wicked men; If it were not efsential would god impart it only, on particular occasions, and that merely for the purpose of decuving mankind? If such a power exists it must be as common and general in its operations, as are the powers of human nature or any of the ordinary laws of the Universe. Here then experience must be and infallible outinon of judging. If we have no experience therefore of prodegues in nature, which must necessarily be ascribed to the agency of sufuin spirits either good a cicl. It is contrary to cound phi: losaply to believe in their existenct _ To say he restrains them in the employment of these powers, which are suffored to be natural to them, when he does not restrain man in the natural use of his faculties (I repeat it) is men hypothesis -As reason desperience plainly contracted the idea of any mi raculous powers existing in wil Demons, the Scriptures which are often appealed to for the support of this absurd belief, furnish no founda tion for the credit of Demoniacal muachs. It is impossible they wholed indeed without distroying their own evidence. Let us consult the ex = plicit declarations of the sacred writers themselves, whom this subject and then pass under our revew, some of those facts which are supposed to give the queatest countenance to the belief of dimoniacal powers - The Deities of the Pagan nations were of two kinds - The former were what they called the natural Gods, and were only the different poots of nature, as the Sun, the Moon, the Plannets, which they imagined were eternal Vanimated with a devine power - The latter were denominated Demons, and were only the souls of heads, the founders, the benefactors, and sometimes the distroyers of nations which after death were exalted to a middle rank telween cles

oforts

ture ?

men and the guar Gods : biens, Pletarch, Pliny omany others of the Greeks Roman witers, acknowledge that the immediate objects of the worship of their respective countries were chiefly degnified men whose names being given to the superior Gods, and their terestrial and fabulous history, blended with the symbolical theogray of their natural occlestial divinities, has created an infinite and their natural occlestial divinities, has created an infinite and almost inextricable confusion in their mythology - Both these classes of Gods, then Moses of the Prophets most expressly ore peatedly denounce attogether impotent, and those who pretended to act by any influence over the regular course of nature and derived from them as in-

Note : The word semm among us bears a very defeath signification from that which Daimin conveyed to the mind of a Greek. But the chiefian fathers having taken up the idea, that all the objects of Pagan waship, were wished sinfernal spirits, who had certain powers given them of ranging through the louth, of injuring, solecewing mankind—who term has in their hands enterly changed the maning—if we bear in mind the true interpretation of the torm, claimones, which the transtators of the new testament, have cony interpretation of the torm, claimones, which the transtators of the new testament, have cony where removed Devils, we shall rescue from mistake adoust, many papeages in that sacrue book, which in their present from, seem qualty to eatend the power of malicious and informal spirits, over the order of nature of the happings of men contrary to experience, to reason and all our ideas of dwine goodings; knowing that the scriptures dang any power to the wouls of dead men, or even of Phisikoi Devil of the Heathers, which were only certain wouls of dead men, or even of Phisikoi Devil of the Heathers, which were only certain wouls of inaminate Nature, supposed by them to be inhabited by celestial opints, policies of inaminate Nature, supposed by them to be inhabited by celestial opints were must adopt such an interpretation of the tests to which I have referred as with one must adopt such an interpretation of the tests to which I have referred as with correspond to the known ideas of the sourced within - End of the Note.

Dutoronomy 32.21

postors. The Sun, the Moon, the Hars, vall the elements of nature, the wise Legislators of Israel, regards merely as the works of God and motuments in his hands, to accomplish the purposes of his Providence; but denies them life, intelligence or any supernatural Power. The belief of the devine power or agency of the spirits of dead men, which were the demons, or inferior deities of the Heathers, and paying them any venra: tion or worship, a having recourse to them for any kind of aid, council, or protection, he condemns as being among the quatest imputies crimes. Magicians, Necromancers, Astrologues, Southsayers, vall the hibe, who pretend to supernatural operations ventroadinary communications with the spiritual world, existed then as they will do, Isupported themselves upon the ignorance voredulity of mankind. That Moses expressed the same opinion of their powers, which is still entertained by the wisest christians that they consist only in craft , jugglery aimposture -He + and after him the Prophets, call them all vanities. All the Gods of the nations are Idols or as it is in the original, nothing The Prophet I said in order to demonstrate their impotence, their want of prophetic prescience, and their total distitution of all the attributes of dwinity, challenges them call who pretended to exhibit producies in their name, to produce any proof either of their foresight or their power. Declare to us saith he things to come here after, that we may know that ye are gods, yea, do good or do evil, that we may be dismayed that is that we may have just grounds to par ovenerate you, if you have the

ets

in:

he toin

powers of Gods, but behold ye are nothing your work of nought. And the propert Seremial, says, be not afraid of them, for they can do no evil, neither also is it in them to do good. The sacred writers do not acknowledge any miraculous powers in the Goxs of Paganism, much life, in their preists, their worshippers othose criminal magicians, the pests of any society in which they exist, who used and pretended incantations in their name. The translators of the bible being themselves tinctured with the belief of Deabolical powers over the elements of nature, oa diabalical agency in human affairs, have so undered the original in several passages as to favour these ideas contrary to the original import of the times. Thus Moses is made to say in that prophetic hymn, which he composed just before his death, and in which he foretells a condemns the people of Israel to Idolatry. They excripsed into Devils whom they knew, new Gods that came newly up whom they knew not and their fathers feared not. And the author of the CVI Balm employing the same term, says, yea, they sacrefised their Sons & Daughters unto Bevils. Now if all the Gods of the Heathers, were really infernal spirits, enshined in visible forms, why should Moses call them new gods. They were new only as the figures of the Idols, of lanaan o Palestine of the rites employed in their service were different from those of Egypt. The original term is Schedim who signifies distroyers, expressing the cruel and unrelinting ascribed by the Phincisms to some of their idols. X. From this same prepopoession in our translators

ac

pro

Ter

offe

in 26 tho

* The idols of Canada were of a more sanguinary rowel character than those of Egypt. especially Moloch. to whom human sacrifices were slowghtered, and the most dreadful of all sacrifices chil: dren offered by their Parents.

we find a term of very different organification in another passage rendered Devils . Moses prohibiting the superstitions of Egypt, just after the people of Israel had lift that idolations country, says, they shall no more offer their sacrifices unto Devils. The original term is Scirim or Scherin which signifies hairy beings; which characterises the animal worship of Egypt - The one of these terms deficts then, the houble idoly which the gloony imagination of Patestine had created; the other those base and detestable objects of washing which swarmed on the banks of the Nilo: neither of them implies infernal spuits, or any beings who possess supernatural power over their worshippers, or over the regular course & order of Providence - The great Ligislators of the Tews therefore, so far from ascribing any miraculous power, to the magicians, or Gods of Egypt or any of the nations of Paganism, regards them mere by as dead men, who have no real influence or control over human affairs Norther Moses or any other writers of the old testament acknowledges acknowledges any supernatural power in any of the Gods, the pretended prophets, workers of wonders, or interpreters of portents in the heather world. We learn with sufficient evidence from these writings, that they regarded these men, as impostors othe Deities whom they worshipped as nothing -

rotes

wh

neims

ors

Seviticus - 17. It is on this ground that the Balmist calls the offings made in the Heathen Jemples, the sacrificer of the Dead. Issalm 106.28, explained by numbers 35.12.38 Israel in offering their first fruits, as an oblation of thankfulness to God, was obliged to declare in order to fee themselves from idotatry, I have not given aught thereof for the Dead Deut? 26. 14th. In which passage it has been conjectured by several very eminent writers that moses has a farticular reference to the worship of Isis —

They claim for Tehorah, the living thus God. exclusively of all prophetic inspiration, and all power of working, miracles. It cannot therefore be rea: vonably supposed that Moses of the Prophets would fut their predictions and miracles, by which they attested their divine mission, on a forting with sooth: sayers, magicians Nother impostors of that kind, whose sole object it seems to have been, to amuse astonish or actual manking, or that they should acknowledge any reality in them, or any comparison between them, of the works of the Creater by the Universe

Having made these preliminary observations desettled the here idea, which the vacua writers entertained of magic o'necromancy, of nacle and augury, Vall those illusive acts, we are prepared to examine some of those extractionary operations, recorded in the vacua history of the old Vestament, which have been confounded with minacles dwhich have been suffered to be represented as real minacles, by the inspired writers them velves — Of these, the first of which I shall take notice, are the prode-

- End of the & Freture

Secture of no The instity of the competition of the mayecians of a Egytt with a love & fain, furnishes some of those facts which have been most recia on, in the advocates of Lomoniacle mia These illustrious leaders of I oracle une sent by the express command of god into the presence of Phaisch a hungtily and olderate king who held their buthren in a state of abject slavery. 4 This people were heirs of the promise made to atraham, and the time was now arrived, at which God had distined to make them a quat nation, the depositary of his holy law, of the knowledge 20 of his unity and infinite perfection; of the pointy of his waship, of the promises and the hope of his future Neglicate. For this man oli it became necessary to attain their fuctors from a Prince, whose pride swhose intenst, both apposed their omancipation. Such in act of justice to a people, who had been so long iniquitously in slaved, was not to be expected from a minarch of his character, without preducing the most undericable demonstrations, that in demo ding their liberty, their representative shead was acting under the immediate authority of Heaven- He came to Pharoah therefore commissioned vempowered. to perform such prodigies in his presence and in the presence of all Egypt as should early with them

H. Pice Jin Mocte-

to an impartial and disinterished mind, mesistible evidence of the divine spirit with which he was in spired. The unrighteous King willing to smother his own convictions, and to justify to himself his repusal of this high act of justice to an injured people, endeavoused to persuade himself that the miracle of Moses, though To grand amagnificent, Is for surpassing the powers of human ant, were to be placed only on the same footing, with those sleights of Sigerain ain a Dugglery, those pretended incantations apowers of magic, with which the Egyptians were already so familias. -For this purpose he sent for his magicians, his sorcereis and enchanters, a class of deceivers with which all the Eastern nations of Antiquity abounded which are old to be found in most counthis in proportion to their ignorance of the religion Not natural science, and with these he confronted Moses, in hope of finding such a resemblance in their works, as would justify him in refusing to acknowledge the soverigh asole dominion of Ichovah, the God of Israel, over Egypt as will as over all the Kingdoms of the earth - a few of the producies of the sewant of god they outerously initated. The rest were above their while. It is said in our hanstation, they did so with their enchantments, and seemed the to turn their several rods into serpents, to convert water into blood and to bring up frogs out of the river; but having advanced thus ti

te

for their act could proceed no father. The beloif in witcheraft incantation, and the influence of evil & malignant ofinits, over the minds of men, and the course of nature, was every phere pre : valent in Europe, as well as in Asia, at the period of the honsta tion of scuptures into the english language, which has given a certain tinge on some subjects, to the phraseology of a work, other wise so admirable for the age in which it was executed -The same beleif exists among a large portion of Society, to this day; and it is not easy for the wisest and best of mew, entirely) to divest themselves of the bias, which is naturally given to the mind by the influence of public opinion. To these cause causes perhaps we must ascule it, that many pious relearned atuistian wii ters have conceded, that in this conflict with Moses, the magicians of Egypt performed real miracles, thereby giving great advantage to the enemies of the Gospel, and weakining the principal direct evidence of the truth of Etnistianity - For if we admit minacin loves apreations to be performed by any other being, however exal: ted his nature, a his powers, besides God, Irefeat it, we take away from the major of mankind, and I may say from man: de Ja Kind une as ally, every certain creterion to distinguish genuine 10= vetation from imposture. 30 ut let us examine the fact of the typhean miracles more clearly " We know nothing concerning it but what is retated by the vacred historian vlegistator of I seal nimself - It is necessary therefore in giving a meaning to particular phrases in his nanation, to interpret them in consis. teney with his known and avowed for incifiles, declared in other parts of his writings. And have we not our in the preceding tecture, that wherever he speaks of the Cather deities, he regards them as vanties alies, - as the idear works of a grafs asuperstitions imagination, as the inanimate productions of the hands of human artists, or as dead men who careed neither hear, or afrist their votaries. Every when they are represented as being equally senseless and impotent - Every where their screenes, their enchanters, their south sayers, are represented as being merely professors of deceitful arts, without are real power or any certain foresight of future events. Resping these ideas in mind, can it be supposed that wases, ascribes to the magicious or sorceres of Pharoah, any real power of working miracles; or induce any other power than that we see practised in every age by those who have cultivated certain secret arts of deceiving the sight? This is conformable also to he meaning of the original term hanstated enchantments, which primarily signifies covered acts, or what we mean by juggley * See the book of Execus Chap-7-12.

and legerdemain. The term enchantment has been so long em played by men in common, to signify some operitual and supernatural influence, attogether independent on the laws of matter & motion, that it immediately suggests the edia of Demoniacal agency. But when interpreted by the true import or the original, and by the innumerable declarations of the sand writers on this subject, who dany ouch demonierche influence, this idea will be found to be only the creation of habit represender. No such power ever did excist, as that to which the term enchantment is vulgarly affixed - Inother and no less unfounded mesaffrehinsion, has arisen from the preceding phrase, they did so with their enchant ments, as it the magicians performed the very same works, which were performed by the Prophet of God himself - It is easily to be perceived, even from our own hanstation, that this cannot be the import of the phrose; for though an apparent success accompanied their three first attempts, yet at the fourth notwithstanding the same phrase is employed, they atterly failed, and the magicians it is said, did so with their enchantments to bring forth lier but could not & Hence affears with suf = ficient evidence the meaning which aught to be given to the original X Eurodus - 0 - 13

3_

And the magicians set to wak with their enchantments or their secret arts. By working probably with an apparatus properly prepared. for imposing on the sight, as all Jugglus in all ages have down, they affected in the presence of Pharack, an imitation of a few of the mine. cles exhibited by Moses. That they should not be able to imitate the thunder, the lightning, the tempest of hail, the darkness of pestitence with the dreadful minister of God, spread our the land of Egypt, is not surprising to those, who ascribe all power of changing the powers of nature, exclusively, to him who originnally established them -But there seems to be no reason in the nature of the thing, why those who appeared to produce frogo, and to turn water into blood, should not be able to operate the same diception on the sight in the case of the lice - The river filled with one of those kind of creatures, afforded agents in abundance for such Juggles to work with. End all the dust of Egypt one would imagine, would have afferded them an equal facility. in their operation on the second kind. Those winters who believe in the reality of magical or dimoniacal miracles, an pleased to say that God here restrained the power of the Devil - But where is any such afsortion made either directly or by implication, in the sacred history? It is a mere hypothesis made in support of a theory which is as unscriptural as it is unphilosophical - It is more probable that this muche tuined on a subject, to which they were not accesstoned to apply their art; to which perhaps their art could not be easily applied, on account of the adhesion of that small animal to whatever it touches. The sleights of legerdemain require agents on which to work, less ad : herive to the hand of the operation. It hatever justice there may be in this remark, their want of success in the present case, and in all the follow. ing brodegies which they attempted in imitation of the sewant of the true God, clearly winces to me, the absolute destitution of any power really miraculous inherent in them - all that they appear to have opera: ted. according to the narration of Moses, and it is from that narration alone, that we have derived any information respecting them, does not surpass the feats of ordinary jugglers. - At Naples certain monks pretend to conveit water into blook in honour of It Januarius, on a par = ticular day of the year by dealerously substituting the one for the other - In Egypt there is a species of serpents, prequently trained to play harmlefole, round the bodies of those persons, who have known how to educate them for that purpose, with which it was easy for men prac = tised in the act, to perform a feat which depended only on districtly of substitution & But will not this representative impeach or bring into doubt; the miracles of Moses himself? No, all of them except the first were of such extent agrandew, that it was impossible ger any human shill or desterity to accomplish them - They carried upon them the sublime and manifest tokens of an Almighty howed. They pervaded the whole land of Egypt; they covered with distress & mourning an entire nation; they applie: Shaws Travels? pr. 429. Do. Shiplement. p. 62 of the Egyptians were filled with the vernin which creft forth from the waters at the command of Moses; in the other the river of Egypt and all its streams were converted into blood; so that to find but a small quantity of pure water, they were obliged to dig into the earth - The prodigies of the magicians were therefore circumscribed within a very narrow compass, and were exhibited probably in some small place, cleared for the purpose, near the river, when the King used to wack or near the place where he was accustomed to bathe This was sufficient for a prince who only wished to deceive himself, and to stiple in his mind the apprehensions excited by the astonishing power of the Legistator of Israel - Ignorant of the true God, the sole and almighty Lord of Heaven and Earth, he would naturally regard Moses as only one of the tibes of magicians acting by the power of some limited and national drity - and if he could find in his own vervants, powers of a similar Kind, or on however small seals they might be excited, it was not difficult especially in the beginning, and amidst so many We on by the history in the second chapter of Exodus of Egypt to go down to the river to purely themselves in water which were deemed to be so cred -

4418

motives that resisted his conviction of the truth, to presuade himself that Moses was only on extradinary magician. # -But as this illustrious sevant of God priografical chas. tizing the insolence, the impuly, the injustice of Pharoah, the immediate hand of God in his operations, become more visible and underiable - The magicians themselves smithen with the Judgment of Heaven acknowledge it X - The King under the profoure of his calamities was often constrained to confessit, and to interat moses to become an interceptor for him with God-But when each judgment was removed, it was soon forgotten. and the King of Egypt presents to us an example of what is fre = quently seen in the course of dioine Providence. of a sinner hum: bled deleting under deep affliction, but returning again to his ob: livion of god whis habitual vices, with his returning prosperity From this beif view of the competition of the magicians of Egypt, with the great Prophet of Egistator of Grace it will appear It posterity in the history of Egypt. Eusebius quotes Numerius a Oythagorean philosopher as saying that I arrives and Dambees excelled in the secure of ma. gie, and were therefore chosen by common consent to be apposed to museus and Olive in his natural history ranks moses among the most famous of the magicians - L. 30 ch & Exodus 9.10.07-19 that there was nothing truly miraculous in their operations, nothing superior to what is performed in every age and in every country, by the professors of certain secret arts-nothing which can impair, the credit of real miracles wrought in confumation of divine revelation. It may be asked why God chose as the beginning of his mi: racles, an action so conformable in its appearance to an exploit so prequently performed according to the testimony of ancient history, by the magicians of Egypt. as that of converting the road into a superit? Perhaps it was to show the pertility of their art, and the folly of those who confided it - The ancient Organs believed that magic was a divine art, and that those who practiced it were ruspiced by some Deity or some Demon, and endued by him with power to change the course of nature—

Hence in order to show that their act was nothing but an imposition on the spectators of that their Deities and their Demons were entirely without power, first tempted them to perform the most boasted of their produce is their clearly demonstrated it was not an effect, of dialing power, by making his serpent swallow up those, which they had substituted got their wands &

& Although the heathers believed in a multiplicity of Gods, they believed that the works of each were wholly indepen : dent of all the rest - and therefore though a more powerful God, could altimately thwait, the designs of a weaker one

I shall proceed in the next lecture, to consider some other facts, which some to militate against the sole and exclusive hower of God in working minacles—

Note continued

Yet he could not undo, what that weaker one had alreade done - When the serpents of the magicians therefore, were devoured, it was a proof on their own principles that they were not the productions of any Deity - End of the Note -

End of the 9th Lecture

Eclure 10th

Another example which is often quoted of the miraculous powers of magic of the interprence of infernal spirits in human concerns, is supposed to be found in the history of the witch who lived at Ender in I snael, and pretended like others of the same craft, to the power of calling up the dead, to give out oracles to the creditions ysuperstitions people who consulted them. The history is contained in the twenty eight chapter of the first book of Samuel - This illustrious Prophet by whose council the affairs of Israel had been long directed was now dead - Saul a rash simpetuous prince, no longer restrained by the authority of this holy man, had plunged out into many extravagancies oun prities by which he frefeited the protection of avour of God. Reduced to the quatest extremities in a dangerous was, with the neighbouring nations of Palestine, God had refused to answer him in the usual ways, by which he often communicated his will to the rulers of that chosen people - Overwhelmed by the number of his enemies, and the fore bodings of his approaching fate, in the puturbation raffliction of his mind, had recourse to the cuminal expedient of applying to an impious proleson of the act of necromancy in order to dive into the feeture disting whaticularly into the issue of a dreadful battle in which he was about to engago-protenders to this diabolical superstition, not only on account of the injury such pretences always do, to the ignorant part of Society, but especially because they pretended to divit the reverse with worship of the people of Israel from the living strue fod to the unreal but hardel objects of a glosmy imagination & Saul himself had lately had a search to be made for them throughout the nation shad caused a search to be made for them throughout the nation shad put to death all those whom he could discover. Yet his present distrips awakining every latent spark of superstition in his woul, he was so far forgetful of his duty as king of Israels as to apply to one of those miserable deceivers, who it seems had survived the carnage asseafed the rigour of justice — of the history proceeds to say that Saul having come in disquise to this professional witch or necromance desired her to call the actual soveriege of that people, and therefore that every species of Idolating was diverting their allegiance, their fear, and their duty from him to those horible phantoms which usurfeed his place. In this view at was treason against the lawful head of their government a deserved the highest he natties insticted by the law — up to him, the Prophet Samuel, who was lately dead. The woman upon see : ing the image of Samuel before the civil out in tirror & immediately turning to Soul, recognised the King under his disquise. He did not at first perceive the Prophet, but knew him by the description, which the sorcerefs. gave of his person whatit. It would seem from the literal construction of the words, that the king afterwards perceived him with his own eyes, and that the woman then retiring left them to converse together for a short space alone. For it is added in the 21st vuse, that after Soul had fainted, on hearing the awful denunciations of the Prophet the woman came unto him, and administered as much comfort to him as was in his power. In the dealongue which is said to have taken place to tween the King and the Prophet Samuel, reproaches him for having desquited him in calling him up. Soul apologises for himself on account of the extreme anguish of his mind the deutiction of God, who answered him no more in = ther by Prophets or by Dreams, which were the usual ways in which he gave his nacles or divine responses to the supreme magistrate of I rack. The indegrant Prophet then demands how he doed to consult him who was only the minister of God, when God himself shad refused to answer? - And proceeds to denounce against him the judgment of Heaven. The time has now arrived Days he, when my former predictions shall be fulfilled. The Kingdom of Israel shall be unt from these hands for they disobedience occumes, and tomorrow thou and they sons shall be with me

This history on the first view of it, and without considering the common stile of speaking of the feats of pretenders to sufur: natural powers in which they are said to do, only what they seemed to do would veggest to an inequations readed that the Sorceufs of Ender really passessed a force over the sead, and by her ineantations, actually bought up the opinit of Samuel or that gazeous envelope in which the spirits of the dead were anciently supposed to be involved, to give oracles to the King of Israel This is the history. - And since reason and the scriptures as we have seen, both oppose the idea of any supernatural powers exerted in the art of mayir or of diabolical influence, over the physical and established order of nature, it is neither rational or pious to ascribe to witchcraft or sorcery, the power of raising the dead, of disturbing the bodies and spirits even of the most holy men, who have already gone to rest in Christ and of defeating the purposes of god, by drawing from them notices and revelations of the future which he has refused to give by the means of his own appointment. This singular fact in the sacred history. then we must necessarily interpret consistent with the principles wh have been before laid down, (that is) in a way, consistent with the scriptures themselves - This may be done in one of two suppositions; either that the whole ocene was an effect of imposture cart, or that God in order to punish the impirity of the King of Israel miraculously sent the Prophet, or the appearance of the Prophet; to answerce to him the judgments, which were impending over him, his family ohis country - Both these suppositions I shall beifly illus: trate, leaving it to you to chose that, which may sum most consistent with the sacred text and with reason -

Note =

It was the opinion of many of the ancients, that a very firm esterial outstance, like the vapours or gafres obtained by chemical process from different kinds of matter, was reperated from the body at death; that this outstance attached itself to the soul, that it otill lane, the resum: that this outstance attached itself to the soul, and was capable of being so blance of the body from which it was reperated, and was capable of being so condensed as to become visible —

By the first the whole seeme must have been the effect, merely of imposture, and the art of the Soccress. - And this is neither an impof : sible, or improbable supposition. It was not an uncommon thing among the Pagans, from whom the People of Israel borrowed so many supersti : tions to find those wetches, who by dreadful meantations addressed to informal scities, and by horoible rites pretended to disturb the order of nature, and to call up the ghosts of the dead from their tombs . Of thise rites and incantations Horace in his Canidia gives us an account in which the sorceres boasts that she is able to wall up again even the dead who have already been consumed on their funeral piles &-- Vumerous writers among the queks and Romans attest their existence - The Part Tibullus thus describes the pretensions of the whole hite. Hoc, cante finditous soum manes me separation in Elect, et topido devocal ofa rogo, Libret. 81. 2 Though despised by the wised part of Society even among the Pagans yet the lower elafses of the People being by their ignorance of their fears other gely addicted to the most gloomy & hourble superstition for a long time supported their credit. and when these sorcerers added to their deadful aits the powers of ventrilo = = guy, which was often the case they held a powerful dominion over the peo: polis imagination - That the Souceress of Endor propersed this hower the original term translated the familiar spirit gives us wason to vastact . 013 which is the Hebrew word is generally rendered in the greek translation of the seventy a ventiloquist - The meaning of ob is bottle shaped, probably because in the act of ventiloguy the stomach was extended with

= Notes =

From these pretinses has been derived the word necessary to designate their imaginary art

Epodes; the last oble -

--

h

1 lole

wind which the people supposed, to be the effect of a divine afflatus accompanying, the spirit of prophecy - It no doubt was the general idea of the idea of Saul in particular that such persons were profreshed by a familiar spirit, ge nius or dity which attended them again forth its oracles and us posses from within . And therefore when the king desired his sewants to seek out a person, who had the spirit of OB, his meaning was conformable to our ver: sion, which may justify the translators: But the term itself indicates the nature of her art and the means by which she im posed on the evedulous muttitude who consulted her ...

This being admitted, and it being admitted farther that she might have possessed any apparatus, for producing a luminous a accide apparatus of the might have possessed and any explicition, and even without any visible phenomenon is capable of an easy solution, and even without any visible image it is not inexplicable. The disorder of the kings mind, the districts occasioned by the ruinous state of his affairs, and the terror naturally excited by the apprehension of viving a dead prophet who had been unevertibily treated by him, during his life, and who now was probably the mefersing of the just and tenible displeasure of God whom he had affended, would render him creditors, outpetitions, and easy to be decised. The society discribed the pusood and habit of Samuel with which she was well acquainted. This alone was sufficient to decive the terriped hing, who hardly daved to look up. But when she imitated his voice, and entered into a dialogue with Saul in the name and in the manner of the Prophet this might have completed his deception—

= Noter =

米

Such images are known prequently to be exhibited by strolling mountabanks, by means of light thrown on coloured pictures, through lens is properly disposed behind a small aperture in a dark screen -

It is said, And Saul knew that it was Samuel . But he might have known him only from the description of him given by the sorcerefs -The quatest difficulty which occurs in this interpretation, is on the prediction which must have been cettered by the woman herself which was so speedily verified - The Lord hath sent they hingdown out of thine hand, and given it to thy neighbour, even unto David, More over the Lord will also delived the with Israel, into the hands of the Philistines, and tomorrow what thou and this sond be with me - This difficulty however is not insuperable. It is well known that the possessors of these secret arts, were generally pursons of great ingenity and acutiness of mind while those who directed the Pagan oracles had established the means of the most extensive and accurate information, concerning all persons who might come to consult them, concerning all subjects with regard to which it was to be expected, that responses should be required of them. From he know ledge, then, of the state of the country, the progress of the war, and the relative circumstances of the two armies which were about to engage in battle, it might not be difficult for her to consistence the issue of a conflict, which was likely to be so unequal and which could not be delayed - These circumstances were so obvious, out the same time so confavourable to the army of I seal, that the King himself began to despair of his own affairs. It is not wonderful then that persons so well impormed as this necromancers asorcerers took care to be, should be able to predict the result - The might have had means of knowing the king, of whom at first she pretended to be ignorant, till she had attained his oath for her security - How surprise at seeing the image of Sa: much, might have been only an affectation of her art, and her prediction a history, considered merely as the history of imposture attempted by a curning vor: fortunate conjectione of famuel to Soul may be considered and which has also the authority of quat names in its favour - It has been supposed to be a meraculous me n:

at

e Ly

۷,

ud. afrhit

interpretation, of god himself, who at this time, oin this manner, chose to send his Prophet, or the lekeness of his Prophet; to denounce his pearful judgements on a guitty prince, who had abused the power with which he was invested for the good of a notion, which was the peculiar care of Heavind. And there are many eincumstances, which concur to give support to this apinion - That was an age, in which according to the sound scriptures, God frequently appeared in an extractinary manner in visions, or by his prophets, to announce his will to the heads of his chosen people. He had lately, indeed, refused to meet with Soul, in the methods in which he had usually made known to him, his councils ocommands; but might not be have chosen, the moment of the Kings cime, who was suking in an unlawful way, to know the secret destinations of divine providence, to denounce his condemnation aso to make his quilty curi: osity his punishment? It does not seem from the history, as if the appearance of Samuel, was the consequence of an operation of the womans art. The cried out immediately capparantly before she had time to commence her operations at a vision which she sums not to have expected - But no sooner had she perceived it than turning to Saul, she repreached him for having deceived her. and under his disquise recognised her King, not from any information she received from the Property, but intering it from the appearance of a divine megsenger, who she was conscious had presented himself in a manner, attogether independent on her incantations of the powers of her art. Every I scartite knew that God deigned to give extractinary oracles, only to the rules of his choses People. And her suddenly acognising Soul, in the manner she did, carries with it a strong implication that the appearance of Samuel was real, that it was not the effect of her art - that it was wholly unexpected by hed, and was in reality a mira culous interposition, equally surprising to the sorceres and the king - if the Prophet demands why he had disturted him in the grave? It is whom the supposition we are now making, a most keen a prignant surcasm, in : tended to convey the severest reprehension of his folly, in thinking to obtain by sorcing omagical incantations an answer which could be given only by God. a so hich God had now unexpectedly met him to give in tirible vengeonce - as pusignations of future events * -

The simple meaning of the palsage therefore, is, if any prognosticalor duamer &ce, gweth thee, or pointeth out to thee, any extradinary appearances in nature, as a certain premonition of any future event da proof of the divi nity of the Idols adred in their Temples Vifuthe event should come to profe which may of ten be the case without any divine prescience, or any departime from the ordinary laws of nature, let not this seduce ther from the worship of the living the god who brought thee, by the most illustrious dis: play of disine power, out of the land of Egypt; now let it tempt the to mingle in the pollected rates of the licentions Gods around their - The Lord your god proveth you, by permitting the operations of nature to proceed in their regular course, although, by this permission, they may seem to confirm the inhostine - A. weak agrafs mind from to substitute a pompous cere: monial in the room of the pine worship of the Deity, a corrupted heart from to indulge in the licentions wites of a Jagan Temple, will easily ouffer Iself to be seduced by such protended offices of desination. But a mind enlightened by divine truth, a breast enflamed by a sincere & supreme regard to the glory of God & to that infinite goodness which chose your nation in Abraham, which delivered it from the bondage of Egypt, and established it is the land of banaan, will be a proof against all decep = tions o impostures, which may have for their end to mislead you to Idotating; or bring into any comparison, the false vimpure Gods of the Heathin, the work of human art, with the true, the holy & self existent I chovah

= Note =

at

- of 13

2 It

ov =

7

In the vame sense Allian, was these words, vaying "When Alexander bed his frees against Thebes the Gods sent to them signs ownders (semia nai treata) presignifying their approaching mistortimes. Var. Hist. L. 2. 8h 17 Circle in his book, de divinations, informs as what was the nature of these conthisagings trastological predictions in the East - Chaldri - divitiona observatione sideoune, vecentiam putanties efficifes, at predict posset, and cuit = 4 - eventurism, et quies quiesque fato natus esset (tibu, 5° ch. 10°). And with indignant with he tells no that any rane of uncommon accident was estimed postentous by, the Pagans, as well as those extraordinary events on the Easth, the atmosphere, namong the heavenly bodies, which is that age, were thought to be preter = natural

This passage therefore affords no countinance" to miracles said to be personned by false prophets, by heather Gods, or the ashologues, a divines attached to their temples *

The oceand passage to which I referred is in Matthew Chap 24 1 Our blessed Saviour of waking of the symptoms, which should precede the final distruction of Icensalem. says, " There shall aim false Christs, Ofalse "Orophuts, a shall show quat signs owonders, insomuch, that if it were possible they shall decive the very etect - The original hanstated show is 800862 and is nearly equivalent to the expression in Deuty; which promises, however they were unable to accomplish. And this interpretation corresponds perfectly with the history of that period written by Josephus -

One Thurdas about the forty owith year of the Christian era, pretending to be a prophet, drew after him a great multilude, promising to divide the river Jordan before them. like Joshua - But he, wa great part of those who followed him, soon periohed - it few years tate according to the same historian. Judea was full of impostors, who led the people out into the wilderness, undertaking to exhibit divine wonders. But they and their fol: lowers were dispersed, and suffered from the Romans the punishment of their folly- ofhe neares the I was approached to their destruction, the more were these false prophets of also deficials multiplied; and the more credulous were the deluded people, because they promised them deliverance from their evernies thiumphs over the Romans - Even during the conflagration of the tempte, and in the last moments of that fatal saige which diso: = lated Perusalem forever, a false prophet encouraged them with the hopes of some miraculous signs of their approaching valvation from the Roman power. Many extractionary natural phenomena appeared at that time in the atmosphere, of which the impostors well know how to assil themselves, to decine the credulity of the multitude - So that by promising minaculous signs and by appealing to certain natural phenomenon, the causes of which were not understood in that age which they proclaimed to be miraculous and divine, they amused buoyed up the false hopes of the people, so

Verse 24" of Mark 13" 23-

It is further said. that prophite shall be put to death, because Ichosah, being the immediate surprime rules of the mation of Israel, every attempt to draw the people to idolating, was triason against that theoretic constitution constitution of government.

desperate was the phiency which had sciged on all ranks of the state and so literally was the prediction of our Saviour fulfilled -

Such shall be the infatuation, it was said, that they shall deceive if possible the very etect; that is the christians then residing in Jerusalem, so as to tempt them by their boastful promises of their false produgies, to remain in the city and thus be involved in the catastroplae of the unhappy Jews contrary to the volume admonition ownering of their divine master — For Christ had premonished his disciples of the signs which should precede the distriction of Jerusalem, and had exhorted them when this should appear immediately to leave the falling city—Xi

Thus from every examination which we have made we may faily und decisively conclude, that the scriptures give no countenance to the idea of miracles, perfamed by false Prophets, by Magicians, by Demons operating in them or by any other being except God alone, and real miracles are always clear sinfallible proofs that God has spoken; they ought always to command our faith voledunce #

But the enemies of our holy religion proteind to produce examples of miracles wrought, or said to be wrought, by men bearing no commission, bringing no revelation from heaven, requally well authenticated no commission, bringing no revelation from heaven, requally well authenticated with those of our blessed Savious, whis Apostles. The most celebrated of these with those of our blessed Savious, whis Apostles. The most celebrated of these produces in Apollonius of Jeanna a city of Cahadocia, a province in the lifer Asia. He was born near the beginning of the first century of the christian era. Very early in his life (16) he attached himself very

Just is the influence of prejudice operancional habits of thinking that this cary onational interfrictation is overlooked a rejected by a great part of reading and even of commentators for the orifitues this a desire of extending the sphere of diabetical agency to ascile miraculous powers to the Prince of coil specifiches instruments especially in that gloomy distrefeld pries preciding the second coming of thist. But I must repeat and enset that if any false prophet a dimon has the power of working real miracles before our ages no blame can be attached to them, with at least as quat confidence as to those which have been wrought so many ages before in the presence of others.

It is recorded in history that the christians at that time, residing in Junes low, warmed by the predictions & obedient to the command of that actually forost it viting to Pella a small town mean lived accurely and under the protection of the Romans while the capital of their notion was laid desolate 4 almost the whole race of unbelieving Jews exterminated

^{# -} It is hardly necessary after what has been exist to quote an objection to this - the expression of it Paul concerning the man of soil by a salar with all preversions organs wanted. The syntax of the argues the species the species to be preferred to the term power organs as well as monders, so that all the prevended miracles of the man of soil, who is believed to be the church of nome are at once branched with the character of falsehood aunhosture -

Jealously to the Pythagorean school osubmitted to the most regorous discipline of that abstenious sect. He suffered his hair to grow without any care, he was nothing but a linen frock, he abstained from wine & flish, Dis reported to have observed an inviolable vilence for six years, during which time he quelled artain popular insurections without speaking a word. He havelled over the quatest part of the thin known world, his mortified appearance attracted the admiration of the multitude - he is said to have performed many prodigies, and prelinded to understood the oracles which were attend by birds - The was venerated in many parts of Asia as a very wise man and in many places altaes were excited to him - One even of the Roman Emperors, (Alexander Severus) offered a species of worship to him along with · Abraham & Christ Jather domestic deities. Some works he left behind him which are now tost - one of wh was an judicial astrology & another on defeunt objects proper to be offered to different deities. In some of his letters, he speaks, of the answers he had received from different oracles, particularly that of Trophonius. These cucumstances alone will sink his reputation as a Philosopher das a Man. It being the only characters which the Pagans had to oppose to the founders of Christianily, they have studiously exage. rated his wisdom whis produgies - Eusebius informs us, that Flurades a violent enemy of christianity set himself to contrast Apollonius with Christ, whose book on this subject Esesebius has refuted - The prodigies ascubed to Apollonius, besides their extravagance, possess little author. ticity as subjects of history - most of them were performed in distant Countries I are transmitted to us by no adequate testimonies. No disciples accompanied him . No martyrs died to attest thim . No devine law was given to mankind on their authority - No great moral change was made in the face of the world on account of his appearance in it. The honours paid to him after his death, were vague weithout an object -

They were like the constath of the Komans the confity memorials of a celebrated name - The histories of him which have come down to us are of a very dubious authority. Some fragments of his life by Huracles are preserved only in the confutation of Eusebius. But the most complete and at the same time the most suspected history, was written by Philostratus from documents preserved by Damis a native of Ninewal, who was one of the dis: ciples of the Philosopher. The meague chronicles of Damis, were compiled chifly from memous, written by Apollonius himself of his own life - These falling into the hands of the Emprejo Julia wife of Sevenis, she thought they were not worthy of the great fame of the Philosophie otherefore delivered them to Philostratus the sophist, desiring him to prepare from them, a history more fattle to exact the glory of this boast of Paganism - Her husband worshipfed him along with Abraham, Orphues & Christ, on account of his traditionary repetation. It would saw as if she wished to provide for him a sure foundation for his power and a better title to be placed among the laws of the palace

Combining all these circumstances it will be wident that that which is called the history Philostratus is eather a novel a more rhitorical effort to embelish the remains of a wandering philosophic distinguished chiefly by his austere singularities. This frictioned history was composed from the materials collected by Damis a weak soundedness man, who gathered them from some memoers of spollonius concerning him: self, o from extrain traditionary reports which were current, of the wonders he performed in various vienote countries.— It was written more than a century after the death of spollonius, and at a qual distance from the seenes of his exploits. It is worthy therefore of but little cuait; and Mr Boyle himself in his whost account (which after a larger one of Mr D. Fillemons) he wrote of expollonius vays. It is not to be doubted but that the history of Philosthatus contains a thousand fabulous things. Can the fiction of Philosthatus then, a the vague rumours collected by Damis, be put in competies

with the evangelical history; or detract in the mind of any reasonable man from the authenticity oglory of the divine miracles performed by our bleford Saviour and his apostles to demonstrate their mession from heaven - this chief of wonder workers of Paganism it is unnecessary to enter into a minute examination of others. Their oracles have been sufficiently exposed—Their pretences to ashology, disination, to recromancy magic are discredited by every west mon. In unnecessary is it after Mr Paley to point out the fute. Ity of those examples which Mr Hume in the play of his wit has pretended to bring into competition with the miracles of Christianity— The cure of the blind man at Alexandria, by the Emperor Vespasian; the restoration of a limb of one of the otherdants at a Church in varagoisa so oneingly related by the Cardinal De Rety, the cure performed for a time at the tomp of the Mble Paris—

The conclusion which I deave from all these details in the three last between, is the same with the principle with which I commenced— That real miracles are the work of God only— That they are a proper a adequate proof of a mission from him. And that the Prophet performing them, who opeaks in his name, delivers to the world only his holy wills—

- End of the Eleventh Lecture -

Lecture 12th

Having thus far treated of miracles, and of the evidence derived from them, in support of divine revelation, shaving obvious some of the principal objections from those spurious pretences to supernatural powers, by which impostors have attempted to bequile the admiration. and the confidence of mankind, I proceed to take a brief view of the next evidence which is prophecy - The curiosity of mankind and their solicitude to dive into the secrets of futurity, have given rise to or acular pudictions among all the nations of antiquity. But all these usponses usually related to some immediate emergency of the state; or the individual consulting the oracle, concerning which some probable conjecture might be formed . We do not find among them, as in the sacred scriptures any connected sines of prophecy) extending to the most distant and future period of time. The Preist who presided over the oracles possessed ample means of acquiring accurate sextensive information, concerning the situation sencumstances of all persons applying to them, and were thus enabled frequently to make very fortunate predictions. But in cases which were necessaryly obscure & dubious, their ductivity in. the ambiguous choice, or an angement of words, helfud them often to adapt their usponses, to the most contrary coints -

The prophecies of the sacred writings, affect no such diplicity or ambiguity of aim. They are not confined to the distinies of indireducals, or to the revolutions in the state of princes and of nations the causes of which are already visibly prepared; but look forward through the whole series of time, to events which no human foresight or sagacity could nach - Events near at hand the inspired prophets often foretold for the consiction of the present generation with the same certainty sease pointed out those which were to spring from them in future ages for the conviction of the most distant posterity. Clear and undervable predictions of feture counts, the existence of which could not be foreseen by the retation of cause deflect, are decisive demonstra tions of the divine mission of a prophet of the illumination of his mind by the holy spirit. For who but God who hath created all things bananged the whole system of divine providence can see the and from the beginning? In the evidence by which the cudibility of the gospel is supported, God has given a new display of his wisdom & goodness. O Unacles were the best of the only effectual proofs to those who first received the gaspel, of its being a revelation from god, because they carried with them instantaneous conviction; whereas, the accomplishment of prophecy must have been much too slow in its effects. But when once divine truth had taken prof =

1

6-

1

07

110

The

.e or

11 no

for ac.

ex

ci

tio

D

eo

81 1

session of the human mind, it would be nowished wothingshined there, by the gradual development of prophecy, furnishing as it does a successive & growing evidence to all ages. Miracles from their nature cannot be continued, but prophecy unfolding itself in successive periods of time must have upon the serious suffering mind the operation of a constant miracle. ellary of the predictions of the holy scriptures respect the people of Israel as a seperate community, their internal state of their various revolutions, before their final extermination from the land of promise. But these having since passed away, the evidence resulting from such prophecies necessarily loses to after ages part of its force. Besides the diffi cally ausing from the nature of history, of fixing at all times precisely the dates of predictions vevents long past, having given oceasion to the enemies of religion, to pronounce with their usual effronting, that the ancient prophecies were written posterior to the wents which they so clearly fortett, I purpose in these illus : trations, to direct your attention to such of them only, as can by puversion of language or chronology, be liable to this charge. It would require volumes to unfold all the prophicies even of this character of to go this all the critical disquisitions & his torical details, which would be necessary in order to present tion;

lof =

them to you in their full evidence. I shall confine mijerly therefore to a very few, the accomplishment of which paging, before our eyes, or which retate to the coming of our Savious himself, so long foreseen tifuelold, by those holy men, who quided & illuminated by the shirt of truth, were estumed wonthis by God, to be the organs of his mercy to the ancient world. The first which I shall velet , is the prophecy concer. ning the character & distincts of Ishmael, the son of Abram, and that great and powerful nation which was to spring from them. The is universally acknowledged to be the progenition of all the Aab tribes, who to this day hold I shmael & Abram in the highest veneration. His Mother Hagar had been exiled from the family of the Fatriarch through the jealousy & pride of her mistrefs. And while she wandered disconsolately through the wilderness, the Angel of the Lord appeared to console her, I will multiply thy sud excudingly saith he. Behold thou shall bear a son, I shall call his name I shmall & because . the Lord hath heard thy affliction: and he will be a wild man, and his hand shall be a goinst every mans, very mans hand shall be against him & he shall dwell in the presence of all his buther :- The angel who speaks in the name

That is God shall heal - if Genesis 16. 10412 verses

Behold I have bleford him with make him fruitful with mul. tiply his seed accordingly. Twelve princes whall he beget, and I will make him a great nation & The mode of expression here demonstrates that the whole prediction relates rather to the posterity of Ishmael, than to Ishmael himself. The Arabians who acknowledge this Patriarch for their progenitor, and glory in being derived from Abraham, extraorderedge this patriarch for their progenitor, and plong in being derived from Abraham, extraorderedge this patriarch formsthine progenitor, carly became a numerous people, according to the testimony of the ancient writers; and have certainly been a great nation ever since there existed any authentic records of profane history.

of Arabia, but are dispused in innumerable herds owanding trites from India to the Atlantic ocean ofrom Abyfornia to the Medi:

tunanean. But the circumstances most otriking in this predic:

time are, the permanent character of the nation, of their distinct and independent existence, in the midst of the constant revolu:

tions of the nations which surrounded them to f the pregrent at tempts which have been made, to subdue them, by the qualitate conquerors of the world. The former has been made in these words.

X Jenesis 16. verse 20

The shall be a wild man, and his hand shall be against compans, owny mans hand against him. The second is contained in the following, who shall dwell in the presence of all his bethen. Let us now breifly weine each.

1 st The shall be a wild man.

The original is more esopressive, he shall be like a wild als-That is in his temper, his manners & habits of living, resem = bling that fince, vagrant duntamed animal, which is thus finely described in the 29 Chap. 546 verses of the book of Job. Who hath vent out the wild as free? I who hath loosed the bands of the wild afs? Whose house I have made the wilderness and the barren lands his dwelling. He scorneth the multitude of the city, neither regardeth he the cry of the driver, The range of the mountains is his pasture the searcheth after every green. thing - Nothing could be more descriptive of the way of living of the quater part of the Acabians, who uside cheifly in sandy deserts o'in moveable tents, wandering about in heaps, in quist of a searchy subsistence. They are united in clans or horder, but they are rather afrociations of free booters, than communities, under any regular form of government. And in this wild, licentions, vagiant state, they are ready to fullage the travellus or caravans or to altract the troops of all nations indiscriminately. Thus mutually attacked vattacking, robbers by land & pirates by lea, it is blually tour, that their hands are against all other men, and all other mens hands against them. They somple not to attack the quatest armies, a they have preprently assuccessively been engaged in wars against all the mightiest empires of the East. The laytian, Afogrian, the Persian, the Macedonian, and finally the Roman. Yet they dwell in the presence of all their brethers. Their habitations, have not been overturned or destroyed, as all the other nations of the earth have been. They have maintained their independence of freedom, against all the efforts which have been made to subdue them, a have preserved a reperate and distinct existence, unblinded with any other people. They dwell by themselves in the face of all their brethern, notwithstanding the perfectual hostilities in which they have been engaged with almost the whole world

Tesastris though he carried his arms to Southia & to India, was obliged to draw a line from Theliopolus to Pelusium, to defend Egypt from the incursions of the Arabs of the Anals of guer the Arabians; on the other hand they were obliged to court that hardy race; as without their freindship & aid the armies of Persia could never have obtained a passage into Egypt. Alexander the Great provoked by a slight & offered him by this people, was attempting their conquest Diodous Siculus, liber 1st page 36. Edit Stephen.

Mexander after the conquest of Persia of all Asia, received embassies of congratulation from all the states operaces in his vicinity. But the round sindependent Arabians, refused to send any ambasouch this affront it was we provoked the conqueror of Daines the had resolved to chartise it - when he was overtaken by death. Antigonus the most powerful of his successors, made war upon them, but was shamefully foiled under two of his quated quirals, my Atheneus and his son Demethius. Which gave reason to Disdores Siculus to say, that neither the Assyrians formerly, nor the kings of the Medical Persians, nor even the Macedonians were able to subdue them & tho' they led a gainst them numerous & mighty armies them were not able to accomplish their disigns of conquest?

The Romans at last when they became masters of the world, invaded them under a succession of their most illustrious Captains - Lucullus, Pompey. Alius, Gallus. Fragan. feverus e And although they reduced to a temporary submission, a few of the nothern tribes, yet they were not able, to make any per minent impression, on the heart of the country of these fue intimedated hordes, returned to their licentions indefendence, as as the Roman amies retired. It length they came victors in their turn and under the name of sasucens overun all the East. The north of Apica, seven part of Europe, vestablished one of the most powerful Empires that wer existed. The Furks who suc = " ceeded them in the East, were never able to impose their yoke on Anabia - Still they exist independent, still they exist pure our mixed with any other people. The ancient Assyrians, The ancient Cowians.

the ancient Egyptians deven the ancient Romans, can no longer be discuminated, from the nations whom they conquered, or who conquered them; but the Arabs have never been confounded with any other people. They dwell by themselves in the presence of all their buther. All other nations in the progress of society, have generally changed their customs, hatits, manney & character. The Analy have ever remained the same, and the character of the father has distinguished his posterity through a series of 4000 years. Who could have foreseen national fortunes unational character so vingular o peculiar reonti: mued down through such a long succession of ages, but the opinit of God alone? The was tracing out to Abraham, his chosen sewant the future fortunes of his family, by both his sons Isaac & Ishmael. The many circumstances in which they resemble one another, odif. fount from all the world in none more than their adherence to the customs of their ancestors & preserving themselves unmixed with other nations even while they were intermingled among them - Thus they preserve in high veneration the memory of this illustrious a pious Satriarch. But circumstances, but characteristics, but fortunes so singularly, so totally unlike those of all the world, so little to be expected in human nature - as they could be foreknown only by the infinite pressures of God, so they could have existed and been preserved only by a peculiar vimmediate direction of his albuling Providence. And they furnish or testimony of no inconsiderable authority to the inspiration of the holy records —

I shall proceed in the next lecture to consider a prediction equally extraordinary, concerning the fortunes of other banches of Abrahams family—

End of Lecture 12

L'action 13th

I have whewer the weach wonderful account of the prediction of God to Abraham, concerning the posterily of one of his sons; and now, passing over many prophecies equally wonderful, with regard to the people of Israel, the descendants of Isaac his other con, I will direct your attention, only to that attend by whoses, their quat Legislator, near the close of his life - At that interesting period when the devoit & prous mind, usually becomes more divine & prophetic, after multiplying the most gracious promises of blefoings, which should crown their obedience to the laws under which god had placed them, launching forward into future time, and foreseing the general defection of the nation from virtue o from true religion, he denounces the fearful judgments of heaven which should follow their disobedience & impiety and then fol: lowing thin through their fortunes to the end of time, he seems as fai they have progressed titherto, to present us a history rather than a prophecy - These judgments are so dreadful that nothing but duty. and the command of God, could have extented this from the father and ligislator of his people; their fortunes are so preculiar, that nothing but that infinite prescience which imbraces all things, from beginning to end under one view, could have given so many ages before they existed.

The prophecies to which I refer are contained in the 28 730th Chap. of Deuteronomy), I shall here transcribe such a portion of them only, as is neaf. say to the object of the present licture, which is to point out the final distruction of the government & national existence of that people, their dispersion, apresent state - "The Lord shall bring a nation against the from afar, from the end of the Earth; as swift as the eagle that flithe; a Notion whose tongue thou shatt not understand, a nation of fince countinance, who shall not regard the presence of the old, or show favour to the young. And he shall eat the fruit of they earth. And he shall bessige their in all they gales until they high & fineed walls come down, wherein thou trustest thoughout all they land -And thou shall eat the fruit of there own body, the flish of they sons of of they doughters in the scige in the stailness wherein thine enemies shall distrift thee, so that the man who is very delicate + tinder among you, his eye shall be soil towards his brother stowards the wife of his boson, o towards the remnant of his children, which In shall leave, so that he shall he not give to any of them the flish of his shil: dien which he shall eat, because he shall have nothing left him in the verge, and in the straitings wherewith there enemies shall distress the in all they gates - The lunder & delicate women among you, who would not done to set the coole of her foot upon the ground for her tendernels & delicatinels, her eye shall be evil towards the husband of her bason when son when daughter ther young infant, even towards the children who she shall bear, for one shall eat for want of things secutly in the seige. Ithe straitness wherewith there enemies shall distress the in all they gates - and it shall come to pajs (chamsocras) abunde these things about more input the Dec (our 60) tral ye shall be ent from the land whither those goest to papels it, And the Lord shall sent the among all people from one end of the earth even unto the other. And among these nations thou shall find no cose, neither shall the sole of they feet have rest. and it shall come to pass (bhat 30. 1-3) when are these things shall come upon the see and thou shall call them to mind among all nations, whithen the had they god hath diven the, and thou shall return unto the Lord God Ere. that the Lord they god will turn they captivity & will have compassion upon thee, and will return a gather thee from all the nations, whither the had they god hath reattened there this the

for from tha pu

in

m El.

w

th

the dig cor

the

th.

and a

Such is the prediction of those who are even moderately, acquainted with the Iwish history, cannot but precious with what accuracy it has been fulfilled in every part the judgments of heaven were dissurred upon them, whenever they should fall into idelately, or degenerate into impily. And these happened especially at two quat periods, the Captivity of Babylow & the distriction of Terusalem & the tempte & the dispusion of the nation under the Emperor bespasion & Fitters his son. In one case they departed from the law of Moses; in the other case they had took its spirit & impiously) & maliginately had rejected the Lord of life. In both they suffered the most cruel missies that have were been inflicted on any people. Other nations when they have lost their public virtue & sunk into efferenced & profligate manners, have been subdued by their powerful neighbours and rendered tributary or enslaved by the congruing nation, so that in a short time they could not be distinguished from them.

But the fortunes of this people have been most singular dextradinary they were punished, by the ordinance of heaven for their implicities, but conquered in the full vigour of their manners, they fought with desperation; & before they were subdued, endured sufferings without paralle in the annals of human mising. Yet they preserved a distinct snational existence, during the captivity in Edabylow, as they had done in Egypt; vafter they had been chartized into repen: tance ysewed for a time monuments to other nations, of the justice of God, and the truth of the prophecy, they were restored again to their own land _ Deshoyed again by the Romans, and more widely) dispused than ever, among all other nations they still after eighten centuries, preserve their blood unmixed with that of the different people, with whom this are intermingled, waiting for the ultimate ac comprishment of that prophecy, who promises them a final restoration, to all their civil oreligious priveleges, after they whall have long served as examples, of the divine justice - The prediction mentions that they should be besuged in all their gates. And it is remarkable, with ugard to the people of I swell more then any other nation, that their calamities have befallen them, not in conorganice of open outs fortunate conflicts in the field; but in organisti serges use 68)

in which the greater part of the nation, have been shal up within their walls, osuffered whatever famine, frhunsy & their own furious passions, not life than the word of the enemy, could inflict on the most miserable of mankind. The calamities who they endured in their respective verges inspires as with honor at the recital & perfectly accord with the times of the prophecy). Omitting what is said on this subject in the sacred history, & passing over their sufferings under the dreadful power of the Baby. lonians, I ufer you according to the brivity of your time, to a few pafsages only, in the history of their last & most windle destruction by the Romans, written by their countryman Josephus, who was contimporary with the transactions he relates. In the various towns of I wolean, besiged and taken by the Chomans, that proud sexasperated people, out off all the population without respecting age or sex. In the verge of Terusalem divi ded suto fuious factions by ambilious or enthusiastic demagaques, whenever they were not conflicting with their external enemies, they turned their wea: pour against themselves; & immunerable multitudes of Jews preashed in the City oin the Temple by mutual olanghter. And so tirrible was the famine that is the rage of hunger they fed whom one another; even mothers quen: Ching all the sentiments of nature, devoured their own children, which the remaining fragments, against another time, list a husband, a son, or a daughter, should partake with them the horrible repast, - oghus according to the prophecy, the eye of a woman, even the tender & delicate woman, who could not venture to set the vole of her foot to the ground for tendernels & delicatiness, shall be evil lowords the husband of her boson, her Don I towards her daughter # its one escample out of many of the frantie See one melancholy example of this last case. Tosephus. Billi Jand. L. G. Ch. 3. Lect. 4 - and for other cases of their extreme misery ophnersy - Tosephus passion.

to hor

mis

The

ar

or

fr

90 M

n

fo

A.

3

4

.

rage of disperation; with who they were actuated to affire in their own distruction, ato agravate the honors in who they were perishing, let me refer you to the hourd catastrophe, who took place in the castle of whafrada after the stor : ming of Jenesalem. Awretated remember of the alegens sought refuge in that fortress but being pursued by the Romans They at the instigation of one of their leaders first mur dered their wives and children they then chose from among the rest ten by lot who were to slay the restrafter. which one of the tim was chosen to put to death the other nine who when he had executed this duad ful office dabbed hunself. In this manner penshed 960 in this single fortiefs. And in the whole was there purshed by the sword and by famine and by Their own hands upwards of 1. 200.000 persons, bisedes meanly 100.000 who were taken prisoners and sold for slaves. Of these captions so little care was laten, that 12.000 were blirally slaved to death and of the "em ander a great part was sent to the works in Egypt according to the mophery - "And the tord shall tring you into Egypt in ships and them Je shall be sold unte your enemies for bond - mon and for bond- momen and no me an shall bery you." That 28 born 68 th that is such numbers shall 1.240.496 and the preparer 99.200.

the

vi i

(D) e or. =

the nine

pr. c

the

intre

4 --

be brought to the market that they shall not be thought worth purchasing x. - Lo conform able was the dis = astrous leventration of the fewish tale and the Tholy city to the pudiction of our Lavour as well as that of Moses. For there shall be great tribulation such as was not from the beginning of the world to this time, no nor never shall be and except those days shall be shortned there shall be no flesh saved (chaf 24.14.22) The prophery proceeds ofma the Lord while ocation thee among all nations from one end of the earth even unto the other and among there nations Thou shall find no ease neither shall the sole of they foot rave net." And has it not been verified in the Hale of the Jewish people from the time of Tetus to the present day is them a civilised nation under hear ven in which fews and in most of them in which a prodigeous number of gerrs are not to be found? And have they not been insulted perfectually full a gea demicathe privilages of attender alternally bumbed and realled and realled only to Jullager

It was said they should go into Egyptin ships because probably the Blom as would not think them worther the expense and trouble to send them by the ledeous rout of the welderness and their is them by the ledeous rout had origin ally corner that country to the land of carman but would a ather but these on board of ships belonging to the Roman fleet on the coast of thomas a so the much as to repels had ing there a to the Renging them as to the

and baneshed again? The whole his tory of that afflicted people me their dispertion conform the words of closes that they should become an arto = unhoment, a proved and a lige word among all ora tions | Dent 28.38) One commentance which principally contributed have sustained, is that they have been refused the puriledge of landed property in almost all countries hale They have been roflighed to have recourse to hade & to each anging money for a subsistance. It has been necessary as being generally tradermen and brokens that they should be widely dispersed in different countries their wealth excited envy and pointed them out as an easy pury to arbritary formas when ever the public leffers were empty. The un artanty of their contracts for money linding and this exci led the hatre and obloguy of many needy bora la owers and the public hatred judified the violence and rapacity of government which oppoped them & which noute not have been endured towards any other citizen. Their character has showing out of their date an a their persecutions in a great measure out of then character But who would have fore-seen en curitan as so singular and for seen them so many ages ago? Surely none but the Sprit of Soc and those prophets inlightnear by him. Could it by they any other duction that one nation should be founded ant as differing so midely from overy other nation on the globe; that one people should be alleded to be a standing muracle to all generations; that they should be sungled with all the nature of the earth and get seven be blende a with them that they should be hated, wishered insutted and perseculius by all and yet not be enlorguethed, that they should be reperated from all Mining monuments of divine jus = - tree, for having rejected and enedice the lord of life and get visitey preserved that god may accomplishe his promise and grace to them fathers by bringing them to obvoience of the truth under the danne on of that meniah so long prediction and bythem so imprously rejection then a four see a prophery extent Bodoyears age fulfilled in the mast patheular in enplany mannen and continuing to be pulpled under our

His imposible that this prediction should upon only to the Balylon and been neiter by some year often his return be caused it is found in all the Dannenitar as well as general copies of the scriptumes and it is well that the Dannartons were separated from the Josephe and kingdon of Juden long buline the crae of their captivity.

nlo ter tey of ern B. 9-1 and those prophets inlightned by him : Could by by any other duction that one nations be fromled aut as deflering so midely from overy nation on the globe; that one people should be all to be a danding muracle to all generations; tha they should be mungled with all the nature of earth and get seven be blended with them that should be hatice, wispered insutted and pureen by all and yet not be entire gueshed, that they sho be deperated from all thinking monuments of divine - tree, for having rejected and energied the lond of and get virily preserved that god may accomply his promise and grace to them fathers by bringing to obvoience of the truth under the danne on of menate so long prediction and bythem so improve rejection Hen a Jon see a prophecy attend Bodonje ago fulfilled in the mast patteular in enflar mannen and continuing to be pulplie under eyes even to this clay it.

His impopible that this prediction should refer on Balylon and been neitten by some year often his rete it is found in all the Damanitar as well as ye

44 Species

w. H.

and those mothets inlightned by him. Coul by by any other duction that one nations be fromted out as deffering so midely from overy nation on the globe; that one people should be sile to be a planding muracle to all generations; the they should be sungled with all the natures of earth and get seven be blende a with them that should be hated, disposed insulted and pureen by all and yet not be enterguethed; that they sho be seperated from all thinking monuments of divine tier, for having rejected and enefied the lond of and get virily preserved that god may accomple his promise and grace to them fathers by dringing to obvoience of the truth under the danne on of meniah so long predictice and bythem so improve rejection Hen a Jun su a prophecy attent Bodoyed ago fulfilled in the nast patheular in caplan mannen and continuing to be pulplie under eyes even to this clay to

It is impossible that this prediction should refer on Balylon and been neitten by some year often his return it is found in all the Damanitan as well as jet

44 Species

2116 15-

and those prophets inlightned by his by by any other duction that one folera Infantum be founded out as differing so midelal in Choleva nation on the globe; that one people to be a standing muracle to all go they should be sungled soith all earth and yet seven be blended to. should be hated, existing a mouthed as by all and yet not be entiregueshed; the be seperated from all thinking mon - tier, for having rejected and energe and jet verily preserved that god? his promise and grace to them fa to obedience of the truth under the mefriah so long prediction and bythen rejection Hen a Jon see a prophecy witter ago fulfilled in the most patheular marrier and continuing to be fulfille It is impossible that this prediction show Balylow and been neitten by some gen oft it is found in all the Damantan as of 44 Spenis

O. H. w. H.

